

Dear FCC,I strongly disagree with the proposed restriction on bandwidth proposewd by these "TWO" individuals! The present structure has existed for many yearswith no real problems to the amateur bands or operation. To now place rules on bandwith will require modifications to existing transmitters placing yet another burden on individuals and the manufacturers. I submit that most of all, the rule, if passed, will certainly be a limiting factor to experimentationby amateurs. In brief, lets leave this matter as is. It's been fine for over fifty years and resulted in better and better emissions from amateurs who engineeredtheir equipment to from compression, processing and audio equalization which has benefited all. This proposal is without merit! Thank You.
